 [REDACTED] MYKOLA LEBED, and an unnamed woman [REDACTED]

On February 5 or 6, 1986, one day following the appearance of an article in the New York Post regarding LEBED, [REDACTED] answered a telephone call [REDACTED]. The caller was an unidentified woman who requested to speak to Mr. LEBED. [REDACTED] informed the caller that LEBED was not at home since he and his wife took a vacation due to her illness. [REDACTED] requested the caller provide her name and telephone number and advise LEBED would return her call. The caller complied but [REDACTED] discarded the name and phone number.

Either the same or following day, a man called, asked the same questions, and requested an address and telephone number where LEBED could be reached on vacation. [REDACTED] advised the caller that he did not know that information and suggested the caller try again at a later date.

That same day, two white males visited the residence and requested to speak to LEBED. The first man, a heavy set, bearded, 35 year old white male, weighing approximately 200 pounds and measuring approximately five feet-eight inches in height, requested to speak to LEBED. [REDACTED] advised LEBED was not home and suggested the man return later. The second individual, an approximately 55 - 60 year old white male, weighing 150 - 160 pounds, and measuring five feet-two inches in height, took several photographs of the house. [REDACTED] then returned home
